Overview	Admin	User
----------	-------	------

This chapter provides an overview of the Google Docs Add-in.

1.1 Features of the Google Docs Add-in	7
1.2 System Requirements	8

1.1 Features of the Google Docs Add-in

The Google Docs Add-in is an application used for linking with Google Docs so that scanned data can be saved to it.

Saving scanned data to Google Docs enables scanned data to be viewed from anywhere at anytime by logging into Google Docs via a Web browser.

For details about how to install and uninstall the Google Docs Add-in, refer to "Chapter 2 Installation/Uninstallation" (page 10).

For the Google Docs Add-in, the following is regarded as user information.

- e-Mail address and password used for Google Docs authentication on the [Google Docs[™] Authentication] window
- List of accounts (up to five e-mail addresses)
- Collection as a destination for saving scanned data
- Scan settings
- Setting for whether to remember the password

When scanner user information is backed up and restored, this information is also backed up and restored.

For details about how to back up or restore user information, refer to the Operator's Guide of the ScanSnap N1800.

1.2 System Requirements

The Google Docs Add-in runs under the following conditions:

Scanner	System Version
ScanSnap N1800	ss001 01.01.01.0046 or later

Access to the Internet must be possible for saving to Google Docs. A Google account must be created in Google in advance.

Chapter 2

Installation/Uninstallation Admin

This chapter explains how to install and uninstall the Google Docs Add-in. For details about operations of the ScanSnap N1800, refer to the Operator's Guide of the scanner model.
